Astravane — Privacy Policy

Version 1.0 · Effective 19 November 2026

Applies to: Astravane: Space Shooter for iPhone, iPad and Android

Who we are

Astravane is published by Zinteli Ltd ("Zinteli", "we", "us"), a company in the United Kingdom. For any question about this policy, write to info@zinteli.com.

The short version

- We collect nothing. Astravane has no user accounts, no advertising, no analytics and no tracking. Zinteli has no server that receives information about you or about how you play.
- Your progress stays on your device, in a database the game keeps there.
- Backups are yours. If you turn them on, a compressed and encrypted copy of your progress goes to your own iCloud Drive, Google Drive or OneDrive. We never receive it.
- Purchases are handled by Apple and Google. We never see your payment details.

Data stored on your device

The game keeps your progress in a SQLite database on your device: your levels, scores, credits and upgrades, the ships and shields you own, your settings, and the identifiers of your purchases. It stays on your device unless you turn on a cloud backup, and deleting the game deletes it.

Cloud backups (optional)

If you choose to back up, you pick a provider and an account: Google Drive, Microsoft OneDrive or, on iPhone and iPad, Apple iCloud Drive. You can back up by hand or on a daily, weekly or monthly schedule, and the game keeps your newest five backups.

- What is uploaded. A compressed copy of the game's database, encrypted on your device with AES-256 and protected by an HMAC-SHA256 integrity check.
- Where it goes. A private app folder in your own account: Google Drive's hidden app data folder, the Astravane folder in OneDrive's Apps folder, or the game's iCloud Drive container. Zinteli has no access to these folders.
- Signing in. You sign in to Google or Microsoft on their own sign-in pages or account picker, and iCloud Drive uses the Apple Account already on your device. Zinteli never receives your password.
- What the game keeps. To show which account your backups go to, the game reads the account's email address and name from the provider. These, and the access tokens that let the game upload your backups, are kept only on your device.

You can remove an account at any time in Settings, under Backup & Restore, and you can revoke the game's access in your Google, Microsoft or Apple account settings. Your use of those services is covered by Google's, Microsoft's and Apple's own privacy policies.

Purchases

In-app purchases are processed by the Apple App Store or Google Play. We never see your payment details. The game receives a confirmation of each purchase, with its product and transaction identifiers, so that it can deliver the item, and it keeps those identifiers on your device.

No advertising, analytics or tracking

The game contains no advertising, no analytics and no tracking, and it uses no advertising identifier. We do not share information about you with anyone.

Children

Astravane is aimed at players aged 13 and over. It does not knowingly collect personal information from anyone, including children. Cloud backups are optional and use the player's, or a parent's, own cloud account.

Your rights

Because we hold no personal data about you, there is nothing for us to access, correct or delete. Deleting the game deletes the data on your device, and you can delete backups from your own cloud storage. Under UK data protection law you can contact us, or the Information Commissioner's Office at ico.org.uk, with any concern.

Changes to this policy

If this policy changes, we will publish the new version on this page with a new version number and date.
